

Profile – Navin Reddy

Navin began his career as a financial journalist after receiving a BSc in Economics from the London School of Economics. After working as an editor on several leading insurance and risk management publications such as The Review, International

Risk Management and Risk

Financier for global publishing companies such as EMAP and Informa, he moved into the world of commercial intelligence.

Working as a strategic risk analyst for the Merchant International Group, Navin had responsibility for providing clients in diverse sectors, such as oil & gas, mining, shipping, retail, insurance and pharmaceuticals, with intelligence on regions including the Middle East, the Levant, the USA and Asia.

In 2006 Navin set up his own specialist consultancy with a core focus on the risks facing extractive industry exploration companies. There he continued to extend his global insight by supporting projects in West and Central Africa and Latin America.

Since then, Artemis has widened the scope of its investigative and intelligence capabilities to provide services to a wider range of clients such as lawyers, management consultancies, high net-worth individuals, commodities brokers and hedge funds. Our investigative and intelligence network now spans every corner of the globe.

In 2008 Navin joined the British Army's Intelligence Corp as a reservist, becoming a fully qualified intelligence Operator shortly afterwards. He left the reserves in 2014 but continued to consult for various branches of Her Majesty's Government in a training capacity with regards to Human Intelligence (HUMINT) skills, until 2017.

Navin speaks English, French and Telugu and has a basic working knowledge of Italian, German and Spanish.
